Book : The chocolate tree: a natural history of cacao 1994 pp.215 pp.

Abstract : An account is presented of the natural and cultural history of cocoa. The ecological niche is explored. Cocoa's "journey", out of the rain forest, into private gardens, and then onto plantations adjacent to rain forests is traced. Subjects include: (1) the history of cocoa cultivation; (2) the development of cocoa farming and related agriculture in Costa Rica; (3) botany, agro-ecological characteristics of cocoa; and (4) pollination and pollinator insects, and their relationship to the environment of the cocoa tree. KEYWORDS: TROPAG | Theobroma cacao | cacao | botany | cultivation | history | pollination | plant ecology.
