Abstract The site of Man Bac in the Red River Delta of Vietnam, one of the most meticulously excavated and carefully emerging as a key site in the region. This book carefully analyses the human and animal remains and puts t unusual demographic profile and the interestingly divergent affinities of the cemetery population, and disc marine and terrestrial animal resources; they argue convincingly that the site documents a time when the fa associated with a changing economic subsistence base. Physical anthropologists and archaeologists have ar Southeast Asian population history, and this book is essential reading in this debate. Two supporting apper
