downtown Chattanooga potential targets for detailed archaeological investigation. A parcel owned by the Tennessee Valley Authority's Haney Plant, located between Chestnut Street on the west and Fourth Street on the east, is the focus of the study. The study is not a historical treatment of the site, but rather is a broad-based investigation of accessible documents. The study includes books which illustrated the site's history and property. The objective is to provide an assessment of the archaeological potential of the site. Consequently, there is a need to identify uses of the property received from the site, to estimate sub-surface structures, and to contribute to an organization's understanding of historic technologies.
