Abstract : This book is designed as an aid for veterinary pathologists in identifying unfamiliar histological lesions in biopsies. It has been arranged in a manner consistent with the usual diagnostic procedure, so that the contents are arranged by lesion and morphological diagnosis rather than by specific diseases. The first part deals with histological interpretation of inflammatory and degenerative lesions of the s second covers inflammatory and degenerative lesions of skin classified by p final section covers tumours of skin and associated tissue (including those r the skin). The text is supported by more than 700 colour photographs (mos histological section, some of gross lesions are included) of excellent quality, more than 50 tables listing key points. There is a subject index.
