Abelard on Atonement: Nothing Unintelligible, Arbitrary, Illogical, or Immoral about It'

Philip Quinn

In E. Stump (ed.), Reasoned Faith. Cornell Univ Pr (1993)

Abstract

This paper is devoted to discussion of Abelard's account of the Christian doctrine of the Atonement. It defends his account against charges of Exemplarism and Pelagianism. It also argues that his account contains material that ought to be incorporated into Christian thinking about the Atonement. Abelard's constructive contribution to such thinking is the idea that divine love, made manifest in the life and death of Jesus, has the power to transform human sinners, if they cooperate, in ways that fit them for everlasting life in intimate union with God
