Abstract This book explores the life, thought and political commitments of the free-thinker John Toland (1670-1722). Toland moved in both subversive and elite political circles in England and abroad. It explores the connections about Christian doctrine, the ecclesiastical establishment and divine revelation, arguing that far from being government ministers as his friends and political associates. In particular his intimate relationship with the monarchy as a powerful publicist for the Hanoverian succession. The book argues that Toland shaped the republican programme, focused not on destroying the monarchy, but on reforming public religion and the Church through his intimacy with a wide circle of men and women (ranging from Prince Eugene of Savoy to Robert Harley) to dis
