Quaker Beliefs: Diverse yet Distinctive

Rosamund Bourke, University of Wales

Abstract

The aim of the research was to obtain the views of Quakers about members of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) responses about Quaker faith and practice. The respondents largely agree with the beliefs. As might be expected from previous studies, a diversity of attitudes was not possible to calculate an 'index of Quakerism'. Eighty percent of 50. Their attitudes to religion were probably formed before the values of the latter half of the twentieth century.
