When the Bough Breaks: Parental Perceptions of Ethical Decision-Making in Nicu

Winifred J. Ellenchild Pinch

Upa (2002)

Abstract

Ethical dilemmas abound in the neonatal intensive care unit as hour-to-hour life and death decisions are made for premature or compromised newborns. This book is a rich tapestry of parental perceptions woven from the many stories parents tell about their experiences with a baby in the unit, as well as major events after discharge related to the ethical decision making
